

Our next PhD Book Club will take place 3.30-5pm, Friday 4 October, Team Area Chaplaincy Centre, and we will be joined by the author Dr Glen Cousquer, who will speak with us about this new book Wild Places, Wild Encounters: Exploring Edinburgh's Living Landscape (2024), published by Whittles.

Glen Cousquer is a Writer, Photographer, International Mountain Leader and Veterinary Surgeon who actively uses narrative and photography to help individuals, communities and organisations understand, explore and reimagine their relationship(s) with the more than human world and nature. You can view photos from the book on Glen's Photography Facebook Page.

Glen lectures in One Health and Conservation Medicine at the University of Edinburgh; these postgraduate MSc programmes support health care professionals in developing ecological approaches to the many health care challenges we face in today's world. He is passionate about reconnecting us with nature for the good of our minds, souls and planet. A bonus about Glen's latest book is that it shows us how to connect with the wild in our own university city of Edinburgh, keeping us sane in our studies!

The Chaplaincy is buying in copies of Glen's book for you to borrow. To collect a copy, please contact Sebastian at Chaplaincy.Assistant@ed.ac.uk

Glen will also have a small number of copies of the book for sale if you would like to purchase them directly.
